In 180, the church of Llandaff was first founded; Lucius, the son of Coel, called, also, the Great Luminary, being the bishop there, to promulgate Belief and Baptism. In 210, the Emperor Severus constructed the great rampart in the north, to frustrate the irruptions of the Irish Picts and the Lochlynians. 1 From this it appears that the brief account here concluded was compiled in the year 1485. Taken from Watkin Giles of Pen-y-Vai s MS., which was a transcript from one of Caradoc of Llancarvan s Chronicles. In 218, all the reptiles, cattle, and horses of Britain died, in consequence of wet seasons, ungeniality, and the sickly temperature of the atmosphere. In 220, a severe frost occurred, which caused numerous deaths, among persons and animals, through the intensity of the cold. In 240, a severe sickness prevailed; and many died of the pestilence.
