Revpress, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 211 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Pinocchio vs. the Real Boy is a call to all of us youth workers to be real and let go of the masks we wear. We struggle on our own too often, neglecting to get rid of the junk in our hearts and lives, which leads to unhealthy ministry and teens who are disillusioned. Pinocchio vs. the Real Boy is a guide to authentic living and teaching that will enable us to start healthy, stay healthy, and teach healthy. As a result, we will be better equipped to encourage teens to know God loves them as they are, but He loves them too much to leave them that way! Let's be real! In this book, Marv shares stories and insights from his personal journey that will help youth, parents, and leaders meet the burning desire in the hearts of many for transparency in the Church. -John Stanko, author of Changing the Way We Do Church I believe you'll find Marv's words helpful and his spirit contagious. I pray that is the case, for we must stem the rising tide of young men and women walking away from faith because of disintegration within and deception without. -Dr. Rockwell Dillaman, Lead Pastor, Allegheny Center Alliance Church, Pittsburgh Marv walks his talk as a youth pastor, husband, father, and Christ-follower. I love his passionate heart and call to help us all remember to put first things first. Marv does this by walking alongside of us, in the messiness that is daily life in ministry. -Len Kageler, Ph.D. Chair, Nyack College Youth Ministry Department Marvin Nelson writes with a raw honesty that is rarely seen in the church. This book...
