Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Garnered Grain: The Poetical Annual for 1909 Readers who are acquainted with New Songs will recognise the aim and scope of this sequel to that remarkable volume. We claim we are doing a literary service, the least part of which is (in the sneering phrase of a superficial critic) the rescuing from oblivion of a number of minor poets. A very cursory glance at the names of the contributors to this volume and its predecessor would reveal to anyone with the slightest acquaintance with modern verse that all our writers are not unknown and unpublished, although one of our objects has been to include examples of the work of writers who have not appeared in book form previously, while others whose names are not unknown lend dignity and prestige to the efforts of those who are appealing for the first time for public recognition. In this direction we have been of some service. New Songs brought to light and won regard for a number of writers who would not have achieved their Object if they had resorted to the expensive method of publishing on their own. But on this subject we said enough in New Songs. A more difficult task than finding meritorious poetry worthy of inclusion in such a volume as this is the making of a market in poetry. We want to secure and stimulate the interest of the general public - the reading public - in modern verse. More readers rather than more writers Of poetry are required. This is not the place to deal with the mission and value of poetry. We will take the case as proved. Our intentions are...
